

mode of giving by industry is in itself a permanent part of our musical scene. The very future of our orchestras, in fact, has become dependent on corporate support. In this era of the vanishing philanthropist and the reluctant governmental body, business and industrial support form the solid financial understructure of musical enterprise.

