A looseleaf volume of the Board's regulations, composed of substantive, procedural and organization rules, and policy statements is available from the Government Printing Office, and includes the transmittal of future amendments as adopted. The means by which this service may be obtained is described in the Board's List of Publications, a copy of which is enclosed.

In response to that part of the question concerning "intervals" of publishing rules, the process of publication and distribution described above is repeated, after the initial issuance of the rule, only in the event of amendments or revisions.

(c) Substantive rules adopted as authorized by law.

Section 3(a)(3) of the Administrative Procedure Act requires every agency to "separately state and currently publish in the Federal Register * * * substantive rules adopted as authorized by law." The substantive rules adopted by the Board are found in the following regulations: Part 200, et. seq., of the Board's Economic Regulations, 14 CFR 200, et seq.; part 320 of the Board's Safety Investigation Regulations, 14 CFR 320; and part 375, et seq., of the Board's Special Regulations, 14 CFR 375, et seq.

As required by section 4(c) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. 1003(c)), substantive rules not exempted by that section are published or served not less than 30 days prior to the effective date thereof. Otherwise, the publication, location, and distribution is the same as that for procedural rules. (See answer to question 2(b).)

(d) Statements of general policy or interpretations formulated and adopted by the agency of the guidance of the public.

Section 3(a)(3) of the Administrative Procedure Act requires every agency to "separately state and currently publish in the Federal Register * * * statements of general policy or interpretations formulated and adopted by the agency for the guidance of the public." The Board's statements of policy are contained in part 399 of the Board's Policy Statements, 14 CFR 399.

Publication and distribution of rules in this category are made in the same manner as for procedural rules. (See answer to question 2(b).)

(e) Rules addressed to and served upon named persons in accordance with law.

Section 3(a)(3) of the Administrative Procedure Act exempts "rules addressed to and served upon named persons in accordance with law" from the requirement that "substantive rules adopted as authorized by law," be currently published in the Federal Register. This exemption was intended to avoid filling the Federal Register with a great mass of particular rulemaking (see p. 22 of Attorney General's Manual on the Administrative Procedure Act) and accordingly the Board does not generally publish such rules. These rules, however, are made subject to the requirements of section 3(b) of the Administrative Procedure Act by the last three words of that section ("and all rules") and, accordingly, are served and made available for public inspection in the same manner as opinions and orders. (See answer to question 3.)

3. Please describe the manner in which your agency publishes, or, in accordance with published rule, makes available to public inspection, all final and interim opinions and orders in the adjudication of cases, pursuant to section 3(b) of the Administrative Procedure Act.

Section 3(b) of the Administrative Procedure Act requires that "[e]very agency shall publish or, in accordance with published rule, make available to public inspection all final opinions or orders in the adjudication of cases (except those required for good cause to be held confidential and not cited as precedents) and all rules." All Board interim and final orders and opinions (except those described in the answer to question 4) are mimeographed and served upon all parties to the proceeding, and entered on the docket card of the respective proceeding which is open to public inspection at the Board's principal office in Washington. Copies of the decision are available to any person asking therefor. Moreover, members of the public can subscribe to Board orders and opinions. The means of obtaining such service, and the fees therefor, is described in the Board's List of Publications and in part 389 of the Board's Organization Regulations, 14 CFR 389.

All decisions are placed on a press table in the Board's Office of Public Information where they are regularly inspected and picked up by representatives of the news media. Major decisions of the Board are accompanied by an explanatory press release and are mailed to numerous members of the news media.
