

sional services for teachers and not that of promoting the sale of his or her company's textbooks."

10. After the official list has been distributed to the superintendents of the State, each publishing company shall send from one to three complete sets of official samples through the superintendent to his local adoption committees, with the stipulation that, if additional copies of samples are needed, they should be requested through the Secretary of the Textbook Commission.
11. After the final hearings in the local units (counties and cities) of the State, publishing company representatives, including consultants, will be permitted to contact administrative staff members and members of local adopting committees only upon the request of the local superintendents.
12. No publishing company representative or consultant shall present to any local hearing committee any textbook not listed by the Commission. Violation of this policy will subject the offending publishing company to cancellation of its contract by the Commission.
