

their relationship to the total mission-oriented structure of the agency. The basic policies and procedures by which the MSF organization manages its computer resources are a prudent course which will be continued on a high-priority basis with such modifications and refinements as may be suggested by future experience.