

47.

There is high and fairly uniform interest in the job being trained for. There is also a strong feeling that the training was helpful although there are significant variations, group by group, in the strength of this attitude: