

Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, August 20, 1964

... do not exceed $7,500 per enrollee in such camps and centers.
 (h) Job Corps officials shall, whenever possible, stimulate formation of indigenous community activity in areas surrounding Job Corps camps and centers to provide a friendly and adequate reception of enrollees into community life.
 (i) Whenever there is a vacancy in a Job Corps camp or center which an enrollee resides which is an appropriate

The basic policy objectives of Job Corps community relations and public affairs ... are to:

Develop understanding and good will on the part of the support communities towards the Job Corps Center community and its program.

Channel community interest into positive support and assistance by means of more effective and meaningful liaison with community officials and agencies, news media, private groups and their leadership, and individual citizens.

Strengthen the center's basic program for the Corpsmembers' social development and citizenship training by means of complementary programs on and off the center, including whenever possible the integration and coordination of center activities and community life, development of person-to-person exchange, and practice of community service.

(From the Men's and Women's Centers Policy Manual, 1967.)