

When it comes to implementing these we soon recognized that communications technology was the way in which this could most simply be done. Truly continuing educational programs presented on a regular basis in the health care professional's community is optimal. We must also give them some means of immediate access to authoritative information.

If I may have slide 1, the telephone-radio conference circuit was started in 1965. It has grown very rapidly and as you see in the slide, we have some 58 hospitals which are marked by the triangles linked in the telephone conference circuit.
