

DR. MARTIN CHERKASKY is, at present, serving as Director of Montefiore Hospital and Chairman of the Department of Community Health at Albert Einstein College of Medicine. Dr. Cherkasky has served on numerous committees in the interest of public health and is presently on the Committee for National Health Insurance. He was chosen because of his experience and ideas in the area of organizing comprehensive health services for the future.

DR. DANIEL H. FUNKENSTEIN is the Director of the Program of Research in Medical Education and Assistant Professor in the Department of Psychiatry at the Harvard Medical School. Dr. Funkenstein currently serves on the Commission of the Future of Medical Education of the National Board of Medicine as well as the Student American Medical Association's Commission on Medical Education. Dr. Funkenstein was chosen for the Symposium on the basis of his work and innovative ideas for the restructuring of medical education.

MISS SHIELA C. CLIBBON is the Director of the Architectural Research Unit at the University City Science Center in Philadelphia and is a lecturer and research associate at the School of Fine Arts of the University of Pennsylvania. Miss Clibbon was asked to speak at the Symposium because of her creative and productive work in developing a model for the health care facility of the future. This work has resulted in new institutional concepts of patient care.

DR. MAX LERNER, a famed author and journalist, did both his undergraduate and law studies at Yale University. Currently, he is Professor of American Civilization and World Politics at Brandeis University in Waltham, Massachusetts. Dr. Lerner also writes a column three times a week which appears in the New York POST and is widely syndicated. Dr. Lerner was selected to appear on the program because of his belief that a man has not lived unless he has been active in the problems of his times.