

Fig. 3. Posterior Cerebral Branch Occlusion: In this 26-year-old woman there developed right frontal headache and stiffness of the neck a few days before admission. She then complained of impaired vision. The patient had taken oral contraceptives for slightly more than a year. Examination disclosed dysesthesia of the left hand and a congruous left homonymous hemianopia.

(Legend continued on opposite page)