

Thank you.

Senator MORSE. Gentlemen, I thank you very much. The various questions that have been raised and which we have been discussing this afternoon, I want to hear the Government witnesses discuss next Tuesday. They are the ones that ought to bring to us the most reliable expertise in the field. Then after we hear them, weigh their testimony in regard to whether or not there is a short supply of logs, as some of these witnesses testify as far as domestic needs are concerned, and all of the other questions that are involved in this whole matter of complaints concerning the present administrative policies in respect to the Federal forests, we will be in a better position to come to a conclusion as to what the facts are.

Thank you very much, gentlemen.

(The subcommittee subsequently received supplemental documents, as follows:)