

Here is a brand new expressway with a fairly tight curve in it. One night three boys went off the road here, nipped the end of the guardrail (arrow), getting behind the guardrail, hit the very end of the bridge pillar, and the car then continued up in this V area and through it, and then rolled over. One boy was killed. But look at the direct line

