

this edge of the offroad area [indicating]. And, again, whether it is trees or retainer walls, or what have you, this can be just as serious for impact, and obviously the proper grade is not there to allow a vehicle to go up that grade without striking directly onto it.

Mr. W. MAY. I see a fence at the top of that high slope. Would that indicate that is the end of the right-of-way line, Mr. Prisk?

Mr. PRISK. I would suspect so, yes; in which case it would be difficult to do much with that slope unless a slope easement was obtained.
