

Mr. LINKO. In this particular case, it was only a week, but I have pictures pointing out where these guardrails have not been repaired for 2 or 3 years. They are dated; I have proof.

A lot of guardrails have no service for 2 or 3 years. When there are enough of them around that have been banged up, a contract is awarded to do them all.

I feel it is more important to fix the guardrails at once than put the light poles up.

And this is what happens when these things are hit. The light pole will go down anyway and the guardrails are sticking out.
