

Here you will see, looking at the flare end in some detail, how they have tightened up on the spacing. Rather an abrupt flare.

This is the same line of poles that we are looking at, except we are up near the structure now, looking back on the approach to the structure.

Another element in here, of course, is a block of concrete. These appear on projects once in a while. This is intended as a future sign support.

Again, we will talk about signs and sign supports later.

Mr. CONSTANDY. This piece of guardrail is there because that is the entry ramp?

Mr. PRISK. That is correct.