

We have a picture here, now, of a structure where one of these was hit. This is a rail approaching on the left that I refer to.

There is a closeup of the damage to the curb. Evidently a car topped this curb and got up into this area, and also did a little minor damage to the bridge rail itself; but it was getting up fairly high. We have no details of the accident.

