

Here is one closeup showing installation behind the guardrail.

Mr. CONSTANDY. That is just by chance, is it not, Mr. Prisk? The guardrail is close to the bridge.

Mr. PRISK. The guardrail is not put in there in any sense to protect the pole. As we saw, the other random poles came outside the guardrail. This rail is in here on account of the embankment and the drainage system here.

Here now is the approach to the Dobbins Air Force Base north of Atlanta, and you will see the pole installation here, too. The guardrail beyond it is in to protect this sign and leading up toward the undercrossing structure. The light pole is exposed.
