

tions, snow on the ground, so on. You need a guiding point here, and the exit sign mounted on breakaway post provide that guide point that here you must turn off.

Mr. CONSTANDY. That is a good point. Thank you.

Mr. PRISK. Moving along to take a little closer look at that gore, this is the area that exists on beyond. You could certainly run through a breakaway exit sign and on into this area without any difficulty of upset. Slopes here are moderate. The terrain is relatively flat for several hundred feet.

This is a similar gore at the other end of the project where reflectorized paint has been applied to that same type of paved surface. You

