

Here is a closeup of that same spot. One thing that was characteristic of their design there in Utah was this little platform out front, this little hemisphere of concrete. I am not quite sure what function that performs.

This is looking back at the same gore.

