

Here is a curb down here used to outline this area, the same sort of thing. The marker board is here, indicating you may go either way.

This is another curb use, in this case cutting off the shoulder that existed back here near where the camera was, taking it out to within a foot or so of the true traffic lane.

This curb does outline the entrance gore and provides a measure of shielding for the traffic that enters here, protection for that traffic.

