

This is another type of inlet on that Georgia project where there is a vertical rise here, very obviously three or four bricks high, a table-top type of median inlet raised above the surface.

This is a parallel drain under the ramp roadway, and again with an exposed end of the type that is seen perhaps more frequently than is necessary.

