

In Utah, on Interstate 80, we found drains of this type, and this curb that we saw yesterday, I think does tend to control the drainage. With these drop inlets that project seems to be quite well served.

