

This is in Rhode Island. Your slopes, of course, are very easy here. They are fairly flat. The trees are the hazard. [Slide.] Here you have rocks coming through the surface of the earth—this happens in New England—as well as the trees. [Slide.] And more of the same.

Here we have trees very recently planted and rather too close to the pavement, if I might say so.

