

and systems analysis to develop new systems concepts and vital decision and policy making data; and the special role of providing leadership and encouragement for private industry R&D.

Table II illustrates the role that research and development must play in future transportation plans and the areas of special modal interests and responsibilities.