1 THE COURT: As I said before lunch, I
2 apologize in advance for those of you who are 3 going to hear for the second time some of what 4 I am going to say today, particularly given the 5 fact that we were here for six-and-a-half hours
6 on Wednesday, and you had to stay till five-7 thirty to hear it.

8 I feel some of it is necessary to 9 repeat simply to be sure that the thinking of the 10 Court is adequately set forth on the record in 11 the event that anyone seeks review of the decision
12 of the Court. If I could incorporate the record 13 which was made on Wednesday, I would do that, but 14 I understand that that's not an acceptable
15 arrangement.

16 Just to be clear, the Court is dealing 17 here with transfer motions only. Any other 18 issues raised by the motions or the pleadings are 19 not before the Court. Any other -- any questions 20 concerning the constitutionality of the 21 legislation are not before the Court.

22 I also want to be clear that I do not 23 intend by this opinion in these three cases to 24 establish an exhaustive definition of <sup>the</sup> meaning of 25 manifest injustice. I consider the cases are

1 fact-specific. To some extent, the cases today 2 fall into a category, as did the five cases which 3 I heard on October 2nd.

4 On that day, I heard matters, all of 5 which involved cases which had been fully tried
6 or, in the case of South Plainfield, settled
7 during trial. And all of those cases are presently 8 in a compliance stage, that is, in the process of 9 reaching compliance.

10 The three cases today did not reach 11 trial; rather, prior to the time that they would 12 have reached trial, they were either settled by 13 consent, or the municipality agreed voluntarily
14 to comply with Mount Laurel II in exchange for an 15 immunity from further builder remedy actions.

16 I think the next thing that I'd like to 17 do as a preliminary matter is to place the issue
18 of transfer in its proper perspective. When one 19 hears all of the argument that goes on about the 20 provisions of section sixteen, it is wondered 21 whether the section means anything, whether, as 22 the plaintiffs seem to argue, that the transfer,
23 any transfer should be denied because of manifest
24 injustice; and, as the defendants argue, that no
25 transfer should be denied unless there is a clear,

1 manifest showing to -- of a specific injustice to 2 the builder plaintiffs.

3 The legislation itself, if it is clear
4 with respect to anything, in my view, evidences 5 through section sixteen and elsewhere, including 6 section nineteen, which deals with remand, section 7 twenty-three, which deals with the supervision of 8 phasing by the Court, and section twelve-B, which 9 deals with the interplay between the Court and 10 counsel concerning regional contributions, that 11 the Legislature did not intend to totally exclude 12 the Court from the housing process.

13 The legislation evidences an effort to 14 strike a balance between the desire to place the 15 housing issue squarely in the legislative-16 executive arena, and the need to recognize that, 17 in some cases, because of fact-specific 18 circumstances, it would be inappropriate, if not 19 unlawful, to subject those cases to the Housing
20 Council process.

21 And finally, as part of the overall
22 perspective, something should be said about the 23 oft-stated preference of our Supreme Court to 24 have this matter dealt with in a legislative 25 fashion. Given the fact that the Court has already

1 denied five motions for transfer, one might wonder 2 if the Court is not abiding by its own words, and 3 whether the trial Court is not heeding what the 4 Supreme Court said with respect to that preference.

5 First, I reacknowledge that it is clear
6 from Mount Laurel that it was the wish of the 7 Supreme Court, and I can assure you it is the 8 wish of this Court, to give due deference and 9 preference to the legislative process.

10 I am sure that my own personal wishes
11 are personally motivated; however, the Supreme 12 Court saw clearly in its decision that the housing 13 issue belonged with a legislative solution.

14 Ten years later, it still is the 15 position of the Court that that is where the 16 resolution of this problem belongs; and as a
17 result of that, it should motivate the trial
18 Court in all appropriate cases to give deference 19 to the legislation, not only with respect to the 20 provisions of section sixteen as they relate to 21 transfer, but in each and every case with respect
22 to the balance of the provisions of the Act, 23 whenever possible.

24 It has to be noted, however, that the 25 Court's patience and the legislative default has

1 created some circumstances in which it is no
2 longer viable to vindicate the constitutional 3 obligation by a total abdication to the legislative-4 executive process; and indeed, section sixteen of 5 the Act recognizes that.

6 One cannot find any other reason why
7 section sixteen would be in the Act, but for the 8 fact that the Legislature saw that, in certain 9 instances at least, there would be a need to 10 retain some cases in the court system; therefore,
11 preference for the legislative-executive solution
12 cannot in all cases be translated to a circumstance
13 where the constitutional imperative of Mount 14 Laurel would be violated.

15 At the minimum, the manifest injustice
16 exception must contemplate that we avoid the 17 situation in which transfer would seriously 18 undermine the constitutional imperative which the 19 legislation itself would satisfy if the legislation
20 is not to experience any constitutional infirmity.

21 To that extent, the terms should be 22 interpreted in such a manner so as to support 23 rather than undermine the fundamental goal of the 24 Act to satisfy a constitutional mandate in a 25 reasonable manner.

1                   Now, something should be said about 2                   the literal meaning of section sixteen. We are 3                   dealing today with the first portion of the 4                   statute, of a section of a statute which has been 5                   referred to as section sixteen-A. In actuality, 6                   the statute does not have a sixteen-A but, rather,
7                   sixteen-B, the A apparently having been 8                   inadvertently omitted in the printing of the Act.

9                   But just so we are clear, we are talking 10                  about the language which reads, quote: "For 11                  those exclusionary zoning cases instituted more 12                  than sixty days before the effective date of this 13                  Act, any party to the litigation may file a motion 14                  with the Court to seek a transfer to the Council.
15                  In determining whether or not to transfer, the 16                  Court shall consider whether or not the transfer 17                  will" -- I'm sorry -- "would result in a manifest 18                  injustice to any party to the litigation."

19                  The pertinent section does not define 20                  transfer. It does not define manifest injustice, 21                  and it does not define party.

22                  Now, the language that I quoted, 23                  starting with the words, quote, "Any party to the 24                  litigation may file a motion with the Court to 25                  seek a transfer," unquote, replaced a different

1 standard in the prior draft of the Act which read
2 in part, quote, "No exhaustion of the review and 3 mediation procedures established in section
4 fourteen and fifteen of this Act shall be required
5 unless the Court determines that a transfer of the 6 case to the Council is likely to facilitate and 7 expedite the provisions of a realistic opportunity 8 for low-and moderate-income housing."

9 It is by no means clear what the 10 Legislature intended to accomplish by the change
11 from a standard of facilitating and expediting
12 the provision of low-cost housing to a standard 13 of manifest injustice to any party.

14 I believe it is fair to say that the 15 final version emphasizes at least more explicitly 16 the interest of the parties, whereas the prior 17 version more explicitly emphasizes expedition in 18 the provision of lower-income housing.

19 One cannot assume that the change in 20 wording did not intend a change in meaning.
21 Beyond that, however, absent some clear legislative 22 history which is yet to be found, it is extremely 23 difficult to discern whether the Legislature
24 sought to limit or broaden the Court's discretion, 25 or whether it sought to limit or broaden the

1 potential for transfer of cases which were more
2 than sixty days old.

3 Now, I would suggest that strong
4 interpretive arguments can be made on both sides.
5 I do not intend by this opinion to either
6 reconcile the language or to give a complete
7 definition of the term, "manifest injustice."

8 As I noted, the term tends to be fact-
9 specific; and thus, I deem it more appropriate to 10 define it within the context of the cases as they 11 appear before me. Its full meaning will evolve 12 as the transfer motions now pending before this 13 Court and other Mount Laurel judges are heard and 14 decided, and I believe ultimately it will be more 15 fully explored in a written opinion.

16 In cases at the factual extremes, the 17 term will be relatively easy to interpret, as I 18 indicated on Wednesday. Just like obscenity, to 19 paraphrase Justice Stewart, you should be able to 20 know it when you see it.

21 And finally, in terms of a definition,
22 as I noted, there is no clear -- there is no 23 definition, in fact, of the term "transfer" or 24 "party."

25 As to the term, "transfer," that issue

1 might be relevant to manifest injustice to the 2 extent that if a case is transferred in its 3 present posture, with a full record, and the 4 Council being bound by issues decided by the 5 Court, the potential for delay and the possible
6 cost of litigation might be reduced.

7 The procedural scheme which is evidenced 8 by the Act does not seem to disclose an intent to 9 bind the Council with what has happened in the 10 Court. The municipalities which have appeared 11 before the Court so far with respect to these 12 transfer motions have stressed the potential under 13 the Act for a fresh, new, comprehensive approach 14 to the housing issue. And I would tend to agree, 15 without deciding the issue, that, on first
16 reading, the Act would give one the impression 17 that that is what the Legislature intended.

18 In any event, I do not intend to decide
19 that issue today, either.

20 As to the term, "party," something
21 should be said about the interest of the group 22 which we call lower-income households. One of 23 the defendants in the cases on Wednesday referred 24 to the lower-income people as hidden beneficiaries.

25 Today we have gone even further and

1 indicated that lower-income people are not parties
2 to this litigation at all. And it's been indicated
3 that they are, quote, "not here."

4 It should have long since been clear
5 that the status of lower-income households rises
6 far above the category of a hidden or third-party
7 beneficiary, and that they are very much here.
8 As a matter of fact, they are more here than the 9 plaintiffs themselves, because the plaintiffs 10 themselves are nominal plaintiffs, representing 11 the interests of the class.

12 Even where an Urban League or other
13 civic or non-builder plaintiff is not involved,
14 the lower-income class must be considered a party 15 to the action. If that were not the case, we 16 would have the anomaly of considering whether 17 there is manifest injustice to the Urban League
18 or to the Public Advocate or to the fair housing 19 groups which have sought relief as plaintiffs,
20 and yet we would not consider that as a manifest
21 injustice to other plaintiffs by a different 22 name who seek the same relief for the same group.

23 The prospect of a builder's remedy was 24 the genius of the Supreme Court decision, because 25 it brought forth those nominal plaintiffs to 1 represent the interests of the groups which 2 otherwise would not have been as adequately

3 represented.

4 The Court saw the limits in the ability
5 of the non-profit organizations to represent the 6 interests of the class, and therefore created the 7 remedies so that they would be, they would in 8 fact be represented.

9 With all of that, it is incredible to 10 imagine that lower-income people could not be 11 considered as parties to Mount Laurel actions.
12 Our Supreme Court has described Mount Laurel 13 actions as institutional or public law litigation.
14 It is at 92 New Jersey 288, 289, and in Footnote
15 43.

16 The actions are brought to vindicate
17 resistance to a constitutional obligation for the 18 affected group. It makes no difference that 19 they're also brought for another reason.

20 The secondary motive of the plaintiff
21 may be primary to the plaintiff, but it was 22 secondary to the goal of the Court. It was the 23 motive upon which the Court seized to reach its 24 ultimate goal, which was the vindication of the 25 constitutional right.

1                   In that sense, Mount Laurel actions are 2 class actions, and I think Judge Skillman has 3 said it very well in his decision in Morris County
4 Fair Housing Council versus Boonton Township, 197
5 New Jersey 359, Law Division 1984, at pages 365
6 and 366, where he said, in part: A Mount Laurel
7 case may appropriately be viewed as a
8 representative action which is binding on 9 non-parties. The constitutional right protected 10 by the Mount Laurel Doctrine is the right of 11 lower-income persons to seek housing without being 12 subject to economic discrimination caused by 13 exclusionary zoning.

14                   The Public Advocate and such organizations 15 as the Fair Housing Council and the NAACP have 16 standing to pursue Mount Laurel litigation on 17 behalf of lower-income persons. Developers and 18 property owners are also conferred standing to 19 pursue Mount Laurel litigation. In fact, the 20 Supreme Court has held that any individual
21 demonstrating an interest in or any organization
22 that has the objective of securing lower-income 23 housing opportunities in a municipality will have 24 standing to sue such municipalities on Mount
25 Laurel grounds.

However, such litigants are granted standing not to pursue their own interests, but rather as representatives of lower-income persons whose constitutional rights are allegedly being violated by exclusionary zoning.

It was this group that the Supreme Court was talking about when, at page 337 of the opinion, it referred to lower-income people as having the, quote, "greatest interest in ending exclusionary zoning." And it is that interest that we are dealing with in these transfer motions and throughout the Mount Laurel process here in court.

Now, before turning to a factual analysis of the three cases here today, something should be said about the consequences of a transfer as it relates to the potential for delay or expedition of the process which leads to the production of lower-income housing, since it should be evident that, I believe, that delay in those terms relates to a definition of manifest injustice.

It seems that the parties here today, as on Wednesday, all agree that speed in the resolution of the housing issues and expediting

PENGAD CO., BAYONNE, N.J. 07002 FORM 2046

1 lower-income is, in fact, one important element
2 in the definition of manifest injustice.

3 Clearly, the defendants today and 4 earlier this week maintained that delay alone, in 5 a vacuum, is not enough; and I will address
6 myself to that in a minute.

7 As a practical matter, if we agree that 8 speed in providing housing is an element of 9 manifest injustice, we are, in effect, reading
10 back into the statute what was in there before 11 the final amendment, that we should consider 12 whether a transfer will facilitate and expedite 13 the provision of the realistic opportunity to 14 build lower-income housing.

15 In the context of manifest injustice to 16 the parties, we are asking whether or not the 17 transfer will aid the lower-income people by 18 speeding the day when the realistic opportunity 19 for housing will arrive; and, of course, it is 20 at this point where the arguments diverge.

21 A brief review of the timing and 22 procedure of the Act is appropriate. The Act, 23 of course, became effective on July 2nd, 1985.
24 Section five creates a Council on Affordable
25 Housing which, for the sake of ease, we have all

1 come to call the Housing Council, or the Council;
2 and section D requires the governor to nominate
3 the members within thirty days of the effective 4 date.

5 Section eight requires the Council to 6 propose procedural rules within four months after 7 the confirmation of its last member initially 8 appointed, or by January 1, 1986, whichever is 9 earlier.

10 Given that the Council members have not 11 yet been confirmed, it is likely that the 12 procedural rules will be proposed around May 1st 13 or perhaps a little earlier.

14 Section nine-A requires any municipality
15 which elects to submit a housing plan to the 16 Council to notify the Council of its intent to 17 participate within four months of the effective
18 date of the Act, so that the notification 19 procedure will certainly not cause any delay in 20 and of itself, since the procedural rules will 21 not be adopted until after the deadline for 22 notification, in any event.

23 Section seven requires the Council to 24 adopt criteria and guidelines for the housing 25 plan within seven months of the confirmation of

1 the last member initially appointed, or by January
2 1st, 1986, whichever is earlier. Assuming 3 confirmation of the membership is accomplished
4 near the end of this year, the Council would have 5 until approximately August 1, '86 to adopt the 6 criteria.

7 Section nine-A gives the municipality
8 five months from the date of the adoption of the 9 criteria to file its housing element, and if the 10 criteria are not adopted until August 1 of '86, 11 the municipality would have until January 1 of 12 '87.

13 I realize that in each of these 14 assumptions, there is the possibility that the 15 Council -- whether the municipality might move
16 faster. And as I go through this scenario, I 17 think some of the assumptions I will make will 18 adequately make up for that possibility.

19 Section thirteen provides that a
20 municipality may file for substantive certification
21 of its plan at any time within a six-year period 22 from filing of the housing element. Nothing seems 23 to expressly require expeditious filing for 24 substantive approval, but if we assume that it is 25 requested, the township has to give public notice

1 within an unspecified period of the requested
2 certification. Once public notice is given, the 3 forty-five-day objection period begins to run.

4 It is not clear from the Act that there
5 is a time limit on the Council to respond to the 6 requested certification; thus, though the 7 objection period is forty-five days, the review
8 period could be longer and might be expected not 9 to commence until after the objection period
10 expires.

11 Assuming, however, the very unlikely
12 scenario of the township petition for substantive 13 certification, a simultaneous public notice that 14 is on the same day, and assuming that the Council
15 does not wait for the objection period to expire 16 before it starts review, the procedure would have 17 to consume forty-five days, since that is the 18 minimum period allowed for objection. That would 19 take us to approximately February 15th, 1987.

20 As a practical matter, of course, it is 21 highly unlikely. It would seem to be highly 22 inefficient that the Council would start to 23 review a petition for certification before it
24 found out whether or not there were objections 25 to it. But I am assuming for the purposes of my

1 review that they will do so.

2 If at the end of the forty-five-day
3 period the Council denies certification, or 4 conditionally approves it, the municipality has 5 sixty days to refile, which would then bring us 6 to April 15th, 1987. And the Council has an 7 unspecified period to review.

8 Once the Council grants substantive
9 certification, the municipality has forty-five 10 days to adopt its implementing ordinance; and 11 thus, the procedure might extend to June 1, 1987, 12 even allowing for no time for review by the 13 Council.

14 Of course, in the best of all worlds,
15 at the end of the forty-five-day objection period, 16 if there's no objection and if the Council has 17 reviewed during the objection period, substantive 18 certification could then be granted, and within 19 forty-five days an ordinance could be adopted;
20 and under that scenario, we would have reached 21 April 1, 1987, which appears to be, within any 22 reasonable estimation of times, the earliest date
23 that the procedure could be completed.

24 If, on the other hand, an objection is 25 filed, it must be done within forty-five days, as

1 I indicated; and assuming public notice has been 2 given on January 1, 1987, the objections would be 3 completed by February 15th, '87.

4 Pursuant to section fifteen-A, mediation
5 would then be commenced. No time limit is set for 6 that process. I will assume it would take a
7 minimum of sixty days. I believe if the Council
8 had one case to act on, a minimum of sixty days 9 would be reasonable.

10 We don't know how many cases they will 11 have, but I am going to assume there are no others, 12 and we are limiting ourself to a single case. The 13 mediation process in these highly complex cases, 14 given the other duties of the Council, would then 15 expire on April 15th, 1987.

16 If the mediation is unsuccessful, the 17 matter is then referred to an administrative law
18 judge, who has ninety days to issue a decision
19 unless that period is extended for good cause.
20 That procedure would then extend to July 15th, 21 1987, assuming there is no extension. The 22 administrative law judge's findings would then be 23 forwarded to the Housing Council with the record 24 of the proceedings.

then has forty-five days to act on the decision by accepting, rejecting, modifying or remanding the initial decision to the administrative law judge; and assuming no remand, we would then, within a ninety-day period, have reached September 1, 1987, or approximately two years from now. Thereafter, an appeal would lie with the Appellate Division; and presumably, there would be no difference in the time frame than an appeal from the Superior Court, or at least no substantial difference. There is some difference in the rules.

Now, before reaching the ultimate issue in this case, I would like to just review the status of the three cases that are before me today, because I believe that it's pertinent to the decision of whether to transfer or not.

With regard to Manalapan, the suit was filed against the Township in February of 1976. There was an initial trial Court decision invalidating the ordinance in March of 1977. That decision was affirmed in October of '78. A petition for certification was denied in January of '79.

In May of '79, the trial Court invalidated the second ordinance, and the

PENGAD CO., BAYONNE, N.J. 07002 FORM 2046

1 Appellate Division remanded the case to this 2 Court in light of Mount Laurel II in August of 3 1983.

4 Thereafter, there was, as there has 5 been with almost every Mount Laurel case, some 6 extensive case management conferencing; and as a
7 result, the case was settled. A consent order 8 setting the fair share at nine hundred and 9 authorizing the plaintiffs to provide seven 10 hundred eighty-six of those units was entered on 11 May 11th, 1984.

12 The Court withheld the appointment of a 13 master, since the consent order resolved most of 14 the issues of the case by judgment; but at the 15 request of the municipality, so that it might 16 retain -- obtain repose, the Court appointed a 17 master to review the final details of the 18 compliance ordinance as it related to the 19 remaining one hundred fourteen units and the 20 overall rezoning for Mount Laurel compliance.

21 The Court responded to the municipal 22 request in that regard when the municipal attorney 23 submitted the town expert's report concerning its 24 compliance plan.

25 On May 13th, 1985, the successor

1 township attorney advised the Court that the 2 ordinance, a compliance ordinance had been 3 introduced on first reading on May 8th, 1985.
4 The court expert advised that she could approve,
5 with a few technical changes, the compliance
6 ordinance. She did this on May 29th, 1985.

7 The plaintiffs in the case apparently 8 submitted applications for development approval
9 to the Planning Board in June of 1985; and I say 10 "apparently," because it is so alleged and it is 11 not refuted.

12 The plaintiffs negotiated a consent
13 order with the Utilities Authority by which sewer 14 service will be provided, pursuant to an order of 15 August 11th, 1985. The Township Committee
16 thereafter adopted a resolution requesting that 17 the Authority refrain from entering into any 18 consent order until it could meet with the 19 Township with respect to that issue.

20 Meanwhile, on July 30th, 1985, almost 21 nine years after the first complaint was filed
22 and approximately fourteen months after the entry 23 of a consent order, which was in fact a partial 24 judgment, and three months after the introduction 25 of the compliance ordinance on first reading, the

Township sought to vacate its judgment on the grounds that the township attorney who had entered into the judgment was not authorized to do so.

The plaintiffs responded with an ample record, which demonstrated beyond a shadow of a doubt the authorization and the knowledge of the governing body of the settlement.

The Court rejected the motion, finding that it was totally meritless, that even if there was some factual basis for it, which there was not, that the municipality was subject to estoppel and, finally, that the motion was brought in bad faith.

Now what is left to be done in the Manalapan case is a compliance hearing dealing with the balance of the hundred and fourteen units -- the seven hundred eighty-six are covered in large part by the consent order; the review of sale and resale controls on the seven hundred eighty-six units, and the establishment of controls on the others, of course; and the revision of the ordinance, if necessary.

As indicated, the master has found the ordinance to be satisfactory but for some minor

PENGAD CO., BAYONNE, N.J. 07002 FORM 2046

1 technical changes, and it would not appear that a
2 Court-ordered revision of the ordinance will be 3 necessary.

4 By that I mean, the ordinance would 5 apparently be capable of being approved subject
6 to some minor conditions which could, in effect, 7 amend the ordinance itself, or which could be 8 embodied in an amending ordinance. All of this 9 could be accomplished within a ninety-day period.

10 Now, with regard to Bernards, the 11 complaint was filed by Hills on May 8th. The 12 plaintiff's motion for summary judgment was denied,
13 and the Township thereafter adopted the revised 14 zoning ordinance 704 -- I should have said, of 15 course, May of 1984 -- and the ordinance was 16 adopted in November of '84.

17 There was correspondence with the Court
18 concerning the entry of an immunity order. The 19 Court at first declined to enter an immunity order, 20 based on the fact that there was not adequate
21 stipulation. Ultimately, it was entered. A 22 master was appointed. And the immunity was 23 extended three times.

24 The initial order was entered on 25 December 19th, 1984, with an extension on May 15th,

1 June 15th, to the -- and then to the date of the 2 compliance hearing.

3 In a further effort to expedite the 4 settlement, the Court further reduced the fair 5 share of the municipality by a hundred and forty-6 one units, as was indicated earlier, based on its 7 voluntary compliance, based upon the size of its 8 fair share number, and other equities which I need 9 not repeat.

10 The only thing standing in the way of a 11 rapid resolution of the case at that posture was 12 a suit brought by a property owner included in 13 the compliance package who alleged wrongful
14 exclusion.

15 With the thought that the matter had 16 been resolved with the Hills plaintiff, the Court
17 allowed the Township to reduce its fair share 18 number by an amount equivalent to the units which 19 would be generated by the parcel to be removed 20 from the package.

21 In June of 1985, the defendant's counsel
22 wrote to the Court advising that an agreement had 23 been reached, requesting a compliance hearing and 24 an extension of a stay until that time. At or 25 about the same time, the Court-appointed master

1 wrote to the Court, submitting his report,
2 recommending approval of the ordinance subject to 3 some minor changes.

4 It is then alleged between the parties
5 -- of course, the Court was not involved in these 6 negotiations, but it does not seem to be disputed 7 that there were drafts of settlement exchanged.

8 Plaintiff alleges that the draft was 9 acceptable to it, but the Court has no way of 10 knowing what was in it. But today, at least, the 11 plaintiff stipulates that the ordinance in its 12 present form will not be challenged at a compliance 13 hearing.

14 Ultimately, the Court, because of its 15 prior notification, contacted plaintiff -- 16 defendant's counsel with respect to whether or 17 not the Township wished to proceed before the 18 Court, or wished to file a motion for transfer.
19 Defendant's counsel, after due consultation with 20 his client, advised the Court that a motion for 21 transfer would be filed; and it was in fact filed 22 on September 13th, 1985.

23 Now, what is left to be done in this
24 case is not totally clear to the Court, in light
25 of the colloquy between the Court and counsel

1 during oral argument.

2 It would appear to me that a compliance
3 hearing would be held on Ordinance 704, which the 4 defendant contends is in accordance with Mount 5 Laurel II, which the plaintiff is willing to 6 accept, and which the master approves subject to 7 some minor changes.

8 Under those circumstances, that could 9 be accomplished very quickly, and there would 10 appear to be no need for revision except for some 11 technical items.

12 Under those circumstances, the Court
13 would approve the ordinance if it found no major 14 defect itself, subject to the technical revisions,
15 if necessary, being accomplished within a short 16 time span.

17 The municipality would thereafter have 18 a compliant ordinance. It is -- in effect, it 19 does contain a self-destruct clause, which is not 20 uncommon in Mount Laurel ordinances. I don't 21 fault the municipality for that at all. It has 22 been the procedure in most -- in many of the 23 municipalities to adopt the ordinances contingent
24 upon Court approval in a compliance setting.

25 In any event, the fact that it does have

1 a termination date is not at all fatal to its 2 validity. Whether or not the compliance hearing 3 is held before or after its termination date, 4 since the municipality takes the position that the 5 ordinance is compliant, and since the time for it
6 to submit a compliant ordinance has now expired,
7 it would either have to come to a compliance
8 hearing without an ordinance, or with the 9 ordinance that it has adopted, designated 704.

10 Under all of those circumstances, it
11 would appear that a ninety-day period would be 12 adequate to allow for the completion of this case.

13 Now, with regard to Watchung, this 14 complaint was filed on December 18th, 1984. My 15 secretary has translated, having here '85, so 16 your complaint hasn't been filed yet. You're 17 free now, when the sixty-day period has not even 18 run.

19 The consent order in this case was 20 entered on June 19th, 1984, and it was somewhat 21 typical in form to approximately sixteen other 22 orders entered by this Court, in that it gave the 23 municipality an immunity from a builder's remedy 24 suit based upon the conceded invalidity of the 25 ordinance.

It set a fair share, it appointed a master, and it provided, in effect, that if the builder's remedy issue could not be resolved between the parties, it would be resolved by the Court.

The court master then set about establishing a schedule for development of an acceptable compliance ordinance and, under letter of July 19th, 1985, established the deadline for the submission to the Court as September 28th, 1985.

On August 15th, 1985, the Township adopted a resolution of participation under the Housing Act. A month later, this Court entered an order extending the immunity, which is somewhat ironic, until October 4th.

But I say that with just a certain amount of jest, because the reason was that the Township wanted to know whether or not its case would be transferred and, therefore, wanted immunity until that date.

The master, on September 11th, 1985, in recognition of the delays which had occurred, established a new time schedule which was subject to the Court action on the transfer motion. And

PENNA. CO., BAYONNE, N.J. 07002 FORM 2046

1 the deadline for submission under that schedule
2 is December 1st, 1985. That is the deadline for 3 submission of the compliance ordinance to the 4 Court.

5 So what is left to be done in Watchung
6 is the submission of the ordinance by December 1st; 7 a compliance hearing thereafter, which would 8 include a hearing with respect to the builder's 9 remedy, if the builder is not satisfied by the 10 compliance ordinance; a revision of the ordinance
11 if the Court does not accept the compliance
12 ordinance; and then an adoption by the municipality 13 of the ordinance, or adoption of the ordinance by 14 Court order, which is, of course, an alternative 15 in each one of these cases.

16 The Watchung timetable would seem to be 17 somewhat longer than the other two cases here 18 today; but in any event, I would presume that by 19 the end of February or sometime into March, we 20 can extend it to the end of March, the Watchung 21 case could easily be completed.

22 Now, with that overview of the statute
23 and the review of the procedures under the 24 statute, the time frames and the specific 25 analyses of the progress of each of the cases

1 before the Court, there remains only the ultimate 2 issue of whether these cases should be transferred 3 to the Council or retained here.

4 The parties to these motions and others
5 filed with the Court have suggested a host of 6 criteria by which the applications are to be 7 judged. And I listed them the last time, 8 thinking that it would be useful to counsel in 9 future cases; and apparently, it was partially 10 useful, at least, to counsel.

11 I am going to list them again and 12 expand just slightly on them, because as we go 13 through these cases, new issues are developed,
14 and all of them should be considered.

15 I emphasize again, however, that I do
16 not list them in order of preference, and clearly 17 with no intention to imply approval or disapproval
18 of any factor which I don't specifically discuss.
19 In any given case, one of them may have greater 20 relevancy than the other, may not apply, or may 21 be the determining factor.

22 The factors include the age of the case, 23 the complexity of the issues; the stage of the 24 litigation, that is, discovery, pretrial, trial, 25 compliance, settlement; the number and nature of

1 previous determinations of substantive issues;
2 the relative degree of judicial and administrative 3 expertise on the issues involved.

4 The need for development of an evidentiary
5 record; the conduct of the parties; the likelihood 6 that the Council determinations would differ from 7 the Court's; the likelihood that Council
8 determinations would have a basis in broader state-9 wide policy.

10 Whether harm would be caused by a delay
11 in the transfer or, conversely, whether a denial 12 of a transfer would cause a greater delay.

13 Whether the Council process, absent the 14 ability to impose restraint, would cause the 15 irreparable loss of vacant developable land for 16 Mount Laurel construction; whether the transfer
17 would facilitate or expedite the realistic
18 opportunity for lower-income housing.

19 Whether a change in the housing market
20 could occur if the venue selected causes delay;
21 the loss of the plaintiff's right to participate
22 in the Council process at least up to the point
23 of mediation; and the loss of alleged rights
24 existing under Court orders.

25 We are up to fifteen factors at this

1 point. They may encompass some others which have 2 not been mentioned, and there may be others which 3 have not yet been considered. As noted, I do not 4 see any need to dwell on each factor.

5 All of the cases today have a certain
6 number of factors in common. They have all 7 settled voluntarily, in the sense that the 8 municipalities have either settled directly with 9 the parties or have chosen to voluntarily comply
10 with Mount Laurel, and the parties have all acted,
11 until recently, in accordance with the provisions 12 of those voluntary orders.

13 The record in each case is replete with 14 evidence that the parties have, through their own 15 conduct, defined the issues of region, regional 16 need and fair share, just as though a trial had 17 been held in the case.

18 During the process, all three 19 municipalities have been given much more than the 20 ninety days envisioned by our Supreme Court to 21 revise their ordinances, and indeed much more 22 time than any municipality which had not 23 voluntarily complied, since that municipality or 24 those types of municipalities would have been 25 brought to trial within the time frame consumed

1 by these cases.

2 In any event, the compliance ordinances
3 have been accomplished in Manalapan and in 4 Bernards; and in large part, they seem to have 5 the general approval of the master.

6 In the Watchung case, its ordinance is 7 in progress and is due to be submitted in less 8 than sixty days.

9 Furthermore, each of the municipalities
10 has received significant fair share reductions 11 because of voluntary compliance. I applaud that.
12 Some have criticized it as a reward for obeying
13 the law.

14 There are aspects of estoppel in each
15 case. Had the defendants not sought to -- sought 16 entry of consent orders or immunity orders, it is 17 entirely likely that each of these cases would 18 have been tried, the fair share established, 19 certainly in both Manalapan and in Bernards, and 20 a compliance ordinance under review.

21 In Watchung, we might have been near or 22 would have been completed the trial and been in 23 the compliance stage.

24 The Court has, in short, been a patient
25 partner with the towns, because they demonstrated

1 their desire to voluntarily comply. In fact,
2 many plaintiffs have chastized the Court for being 3 too patient.

4 There are additional factors which are 5 unique to each case, which I need not dwell upon, 6 nor do I give them excessive weight; yet they 7 deserve just brief notice, and they are considered 8 in the total picture.

9 The Manalapan case is now over nine
10 years old, and it is now within a few months of 11 total resolution. Even without a compliance
12 ordinance, it has a binding Court order which 13 will provide seven hundred eighty-six units of 14 its nine hundred fair share.

15 The Bernards case was and, from what 16 the Court hears today, is for all intents and 17 purposes settled, and the plaintiff is as ready 18 a builder as the Court has before it.

19 It's demonstrated that rather 20 conclusively in Bedminster. The evidence in the 21 Bedminster case may be considered in this matter.
22 It is entirely clear that the effort of Hills
23 Development is within a confined area, that it 24 has control of the important aspects of 25 construction which go to making rapid construction

1 possible. It has control of its sewer plant, it
2 has sewer capacity. It has all of the necessary
3 other infrastructure at hand, and it has the site
4 immediately adjacent to its site in Bedminster.

5 In Watchung, the immunity order has 6 given the town a two-sided protection somewhat
7 unique to Watchung, does exist in a few other 8 municipalities. It has an opportunity to settle 9 now, and still later seek a reduction of the 10 fair share based on what might happen in the 11 Housing Council. That arrangement rings of 12 fairness to the defendant.

13 Of predominant importance in these cases
14 is the status of each case and the inevitable 15 delay which will be caused by transfer. As the 16 facts were cited show, each of the cases before 17 the Court are very near to completion. The 18 Court's best estimate is that they could be done 19 in anywhere from three to six months. They could 20 be done even sooner than that.

21 Even if the estimate is overly-
22 optimistic, the time span is significantly shorter 23 than the minimum period of time which was 24 calculated in the analysis of the Act.

25 We are not looking at delay in a vacuum,

1 because as the defendants' counsel have properly
2 pointed out, the Housing Council process must 3 take some time. And at this posture, we have to 4 presume that the Legislature chose a reasonable 5 time frame for cases which belong before the 6 Council.

7 That presumption is a right to which 8 the legislation is entitled. But in transfer 9 cases, we have to look at delay in relative terms,
10 that is, relative to the status of the case before
11 the Court, because delay before the Council,
12 excessive delay, in relationship to delay before 13 the Court, equates to postponing the day until 14 the realistic opportunity is afforded and housing 15 is built.

16 In each of these cases, we have builders
17 who are ready to proceed. Indeed, we have 18 builders proceeding in two of the cases, just as 19 builders have moved promptly to get construction 20 under way in other towns where compliance has 21 already occurred.

22 Of course, avoidance of delay at all
23 costs is not an acceptable goal; however, no one 24 has demonstrated to the Court that the Court does 25 not have the expertise to complete these matters

1 and to meet the special issues involved.

2 All the municipalities before the Court
3 today and in other matters have been evaluated 4 based upon statewide planning criteria which have 5 been carefully developed.

6 I might note that the Act itself does 7 not call for statewide planning; it calls for 8 regional planning. Presumably, they're one and 9 the same, or hopefully they would be one and the 10 same, except for the fact that the Act limits the 11 regions to a maximum of four counties.

12 In any event, and that is an aside, the 13 methodology which the Court uses leaves room for 14 adjustments based upon the very criteria which 15 the Act itself has adopted. In fact, if one were 16 to read the Act, it would look like a compendium
17 of those issues raised by the defendants in Mount 18 Laurel proceedings.

19 I don't say that with any criticism.
20 It is entirely appropriate. But section seven-C 21 of the Act calls upon the Council to consider 22 various criteria in reviewing the housing element.

23 And I believe that a review of them
24 will track the sort of defenses which the Court 25 has dealt with here in the judicial setting and responded to in that setting.

So the methodology has left room for adjustment based upon vacant land, based upon environmental constraints, the need for preservation of agricultural areas, historic areas, recreational areas, open space, and other special categories of land uses.

The Court has allowed for adjustments of the compliance ordinance based upon prior land use patterns, and thus, as a result, in Freehold Township, reduced the fair share of that community by thirty-five percent because of prior efforts made to provide a variety and mix of housing.

The methodology allows for many other practical and equitable adjustments, as is evidenced indeed in the instance of Bernards and in many other cases in which there has been voluntary compliance.

The determination of the manifest injustice issue is and will be a balancing process in all of the cases. In each case before the Court today, the balance tips heavily in favor of a denial of the motions to transfer.

The statutory test is manifest injustice

1 to any party. The defendants have failed to 2 demonstrate the slightest injustice to them,
3 whereas the injustice to the lower-income
4 households is entirely evident and manifest.

5 With respect to the other collateral
6 issue in Manalapan, that is of phasing, the Court
7 will deal with it on the compliance hearing. I 8 suggest that it can be dealt with as to the 9 hundred and fourteen units so as to satisfy the 10 entire phasing issue, and I need not decide the 11 applicability of section twenty-three to the 12 settlement, and adequate phasing of those hundred 13 and fourteen units will accomplish the legislative 14 intent even if it is applicable, which is a 15 substantial doubt.

16 All right. I will entertain a motion
17 from each plaintiff denying -- I mean an order
18 denying the motion. Anything further?

MR. HILL: Technically, in submitting the orders, Your Honor, there was a cross-motion for a hearing on compliance which I think Your Honor spoke to. Should the judgment reflect that that would take place at a date to be set by the Court?

THE COURT: That will happen whether or not you put it in the order.

MR. HILL: I just was wondering how to write the order.

THE COURT: It need not go in the order, but there will be a compliance hearing set. Okay? Gentlemen, have a good day.
