Does it give you a sickly feeling . .

. . . to have the judge say, "You know what Judge Jones ruled the other day in an analogous case."

5293

It not only gives you a sickly feeling to have the judge or the opposition call your attention to a recent decision you have overlooked; they often wipe out much of the work you have put in preparing your case.

LATEST OPINIONS AVAILABLE

The very latest court opinions and administrative decisions are available. If you don't have them there are many thousand lawyers ahead of you. In these days of keen competition, can anybody let others get ahead of him, especially if the remedy is well within reason?

WHAT IS THIS PLAN?

The plan is this: You may have the full text of all United States Supreme Court decisions mailed to you on the same day they are rendered. You will receive each week comprehensive digests of the important rulings of Federal Bureaus—those decisions that involve some new interpretations of the Act or Regulation concerned. On an average, these will reach you long before they appear in any other sources. Also you will have digests of precedent-establishing opinions from the U. S. Circuit Courts of Appeals, District Courts, and State Supreme Courts. Our staff reads over 25,000 such opinions each year; reports 1,300 of them. The reported cases develop new points, decide new issues. These, too, will reach you before they usually appear in other sources.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

If you are interested in having more details we will be glad to send you a complete booklet in which we describe how you can keep up with the law by using The United States Law Week. Write now for this information.
